New Commission Website

The Commission is pleased to announce the launch of its new website - and its new domain: www.gamingcommission.ca .

Commission Chairman Dean Montour commented, "The Commission is pleased to present its new and improved website - a testament to the Commission's commitment to improving and enhancing all aspects of its operations."

"In July 2009, the Commission celebrated its 10th year as continuously regulating interactive gaming - making the Commission one of the most experienced regulators in the interactive gaming industry. As you will see from the website, the Commission is actively building on its experience and has added a number of features to its operations that effectively balance appropriate regulatory controls with the realities of a fast-paced and constantly evolving industry."

"The Commission extends its sincere thanks to Justus Polson-Lahache, Sondra Cross and Neil McComber for their assistance in the development of our new website."

"On behalf of the Commission, I welcome you to our new website and invite you to provide us any comments or suggestions you may have for its improvements."

Comments, inquiries and suggestions may be emailed to our webmaster at through our online feedback form or by direct mail to info@gamingcommission.ca .
